Conductor

Adam V. Fontana is a passionate advocate for music education, conducting, and the vital role music plays in fostering community. A native of the Hudson Valley, he returned to his roots in the fall of 2020, joining the faculty at SUNY New Paltz as director of bands. In this role, he serves as an associate professor of music, conducts the Symphonic Band and College-Youth Symphony, and teaches conducting courses in the Department of Music. Prior to joining SUNY New Paltz, Fontana served as director of instrumental music at Bethel College in North Newton, Kansas, from 2016 to 2020. At Bethel, he conducted the Wind Ensemble and Philharmonia Orchestra, served as music director for Bethel music theater and opera productions, and taught courses in music education, conducting, and the music of the Beatles.

As a conductor, Fontana frequently collaborates with living composers, having premiered and commissioned works by Stacey Barelos, Narong Prangcharoen, David Stock, Jess Langston Turner, and Pulitzer Prize winner Zhou Long. Ensembles under his leadership have performed at the College Band Directors National Association (CBDNA) Eastern Division Conference, the New York State School Music Association (NYSSMA) Winter Conference, and the Kansas Music Educators All-State Conference. He has recently appeared as guest conductor with the Hartt Wind and Omni Ensembles, Woodstock Symphony Orchestra, the Mid-Kansas Symphony Orchestra, and numerous high school honor bands and orchestras across seven states.

Fontana's current research focuses on conductor training and building community through interdisciplinary performances. He has presented at three CBDNA National Conventions, most recently discussing the benefits of Brazilian Jiu Jitsu for conductors at the 2023 National Conference. He has also presented at the 2022 New York State Band Directors Association Symposium and at state music education conferences in Connecticut and Kansas. In 2019, Fontana participated in the Conductors Guild Frederick Fennell Memorial Masterclass at the Eastman School of Music, and he was chosen as a conducting fellow at the inaugural Midwest International Band and Orchestra Clinic's Reynolds Conducting Institute in 2018. As a clarinetist, he has performed with ensembles such as the Juilliard Orchestra, UMKC Wind Symphony, Hartt Wind Ensemble, and the Mid-Kansas Symphony Orchestra.

Fontana holds a doctorate in conducting from the University of Missouri–Kansas City, and degrees in music education and conducting from SUNY Potsdam; Teachers College, Columbia University; and the Hartt School. He studied conducting with Steven Davis, Glen Adsit, Dino Anagnost, and Timothy Topolewski, and clarinet with Alan Woy and Tom Scott. He has nine years of public school band, orchestra, choral, and general music teaching experience in New York and Connecticut.
